Center for the Studies of Higher Education

2002-2003

Nagoya University

History

The Center for the Studies of Higher Education (CSHE) was established on April 9th 1998 with special focus upon the conduct of research and development for quality assurance in undergraduate and postgraduate education.

Mission

“For the University with International Perspectives”

CSHE supports the growth of the university’s international perspective in order to enrich the community of Nagoya University (NU).

Main Goals

Support for improvement of General Education in NU

CSHE supports the design of the general education system of NU in respect of classes, courses and curricula, by integrating theory and practice.

Development of a Management System for NU

CSHE supports the reform of the management system of NU, aiming for the establishment to reinforce the role of the university as a center for higher learning.

Contributions to the Wider Community

CSHE contributes its research output to the development of the wider higher education community.

Current Projects (2002-2003)

Performance

◆ Teaching Tips at NU (Japanese)

“Teaching Tips at NU” (online version) was launched in March 2000. This accumulates useful ideas and provides some solutions for various problems that teachers at NU have encountered in teaching activities.

“Teaching Tips at NU” has grown into a printed version standardizing the contents for common use in Japanese higher institutions. It was released in April 2001 as a handy book. ◆ Going Syllabus (Japanese)

Ikeda, Todayama, Chikada, Nakai (2001), Teaching Tips for Course Design, Tamagawa University Press.

“Going Syllabus” is an online tool for course designs based on syllabus making. It is an interactive and on-going system available out of class. You can upload the teaching contents easily as an online portfolio.
